had not gone far before there were holes in their thin shoes. The rocks on the railroad track cut their feet. Then they became hungry and discouraged. Exhaustion followed.

Only as far as Newark could the girls get. They drew up there weeping. Poice Capt. Ubhaus, of the First police precinct, gave them food. Then Superintendent Smith, of the Associated Charities, took charge of the girls. He at first purchased tickets for them to Philadelphia, but later he decided that they would be no better off there than in New York, as Philadelphia is more than 100 miles from Cumberland. The Children's Aid society, of New York, was communicated with, and consented to assist the girls. It is probable that an attempt will be made to find both of them employment. Should this fail they will be sent back to their homes in Maryland.

The photograph is reproduced above. Callan says the bullet causes him no inconvenience. He will be discharged as cured this week.

Adored by Eighteen Wives, There is no accounting for love's vagaries. A Chicago man who was recently arrested for marrying 18 different women, all good looking and some young, was a rheumatic old stick of sandy complexion, with a squint. He was not even glib of speech, and so far as any man could judge he was about the last of mortal creatures to engage the interest of any woman. Yet all his deceived victims adored him and wanted to get him free. Indeed, he would have been released by their unanimous consent had they not quarreled over the question as to who should have him. The men who profess that they understand women will please step up and

RESCUED BY A BASS.

How Mr. Bingwater Was Towed Ashore by a Fish.

Angler Fortunately Gets Hold of a Lively Black Bass Just When He Had Concluded That All Was Up with Him,

"You may call black bass wormy and say they are not fit for white men to eat," Mr. Bingwater was saying, earnestly, to a Bangor (Me.) Times man, "but just the same I want you to understand that they are about the gamiest fish that swims, and if it hadn't been for one of them I should not be here smoking cigarettes to-day. Hereafter I'll stand by the black bass and all their shortcomings. It happened this way:

"One afternoon early in the week I got the craze and drove out to Pushaw on a little fishing trip all by my lonesome. I had my fish basket and my tomato can full of worms and an old rod which I picked up somewhere about the house, and I I would get it. I chartered an old flat-bottomed punt, the cleanest one which I could discover in the vicin ity, and then I started out. I rowed like one of the Pennsylvania oarsmen at Henley until I came over near the point of Dollar island, and then I let down the anchor and began to fish. "It was but the work of two or three minutes to put my rod together, bait the hook with a worm and throw it overboard. After that I waited. I happened to have brought a little pocket edition of Kipling

"I don't suppose that there is need to say anything further in this connection. I played that bass with the hand Crossing the Pennsylvania ferry, the of a master, and some five minutes girls started on their long tramp. They later he was flopping and gasping for breath in the stern sheets. As I took

"I decided to toss my line in once more for luck, anyway, and the hook recover rapidly. His mind became had no more than disappeared beneath the surface when it was seized by a huge bass, who started out toward shore, pulling like a mogul locomotive. The water was rising rapidly and I was getting desperate, when I happened to realize that here was my chance. I quickly made one end of the line fast to a thwart, and, seizing the oars, I helped my friend, the bass, with all the strength that was in me. At last we reached the beach and safety. "The bass who so fortunately took my bait is still swimming about in the clear, cool depths of Pushaw. I decided that one good turn deserved another, and I carefully removed the hook and tossed him back."

When Mr. Bingwater finished an awful hush fell upon the party and for several minutes no one spoke. "Why didn't you bail the boat out?" asked little Freddie finally.

Thrilling Snake Experience. One of the most thrilling affairs in the way of a snake experience happened to a young son of C. B Royal, an employe of the Seaboard Air Line railway at Yulee, Fla. The young fellow, who is only about 12 or 13 years old, was riding from Amelia Beach into Fernandina on his bicycle, when, near the residence of Jimmie Drummond, he ran over an immense rattlesnake which was crossing the road. When the wheel came in contact with the snake he was thrown to the ground and the snake immediately put himself in coil and struck at the boy, missing him with his fangs and striking the body of the bicycle, on which can now be seen their imprint. The body of the snake came in contact with the shoulder of the boy, who was almost paralyzed with fear. At about that time Drummond appeared on the scene and captured the snake, which was a tremendous one, being eight feet long and fully 12 inches in circumference. Spectators Have Some Rights, Among the feats of a wild man on exhibition in Wichita, Kan., the programme stated that he would eat chunks of raw liver. He failed to do this, and the spectators wrecked the tent. A learned police justice upheld the act, stating that when people pay good money to see a map eat raw liver they have the right to see him eat raw liver or know the reason why.
